Preface

Moej zabaan- sanen ehsaasan benz khushbu, how beautifully someone explained why it is important to keep our culture and language alive. Your mother tongue indeed defines who you are. It is your identity; let us not forget that!

I hope all Kashmiris, living in Kashmir or any other part of the world, will enjoy the songs in this book, as much as I did compiling them for this book. Listening to Kashmiri songs and transcribing the lyrics revived the memories of my beautiful birthplace, Kashmir. I hope your experience while singing these songs is as pleasant as mine.

My wish is that my efforts in compiling this book of songs will help our future generations connect with their roots long after we are gone. I envision a Kashmiri child, hundreds of years from now, feeling similar joy and pride in singing Bumbro Bumbro as all of us feel today.

There is no cost associated with this book for you. Please share, as freely as you can. This is my labor of love, the only thing I ask is to credit the author and point to the link to the book, when sharing and using any content of this book.

Karev Koshur; Parev Koshur; Rozev Kaesher

Much love to all Kashmiris in all parts of the world!

Samina

Thanks

A heartfelt thank you to my wonderful husband, Shafat Qazi, for his support for all my projects, big and small!!

Heartfelt Gratitude

I am in debt to all the incredibly talented poets of Kashmir who have given Kashmiris such a priceless gift of poetry. Words so rich and so beautiful that during my work on this book, I would often stop and let the intensity of their words sink into my soul.

The words would just be words if there weren't people who bring them to life. So, a huge thank you to our melodious singers, who have done justice to their words throughout the years, whether sung in the old traditional ways 50 years ago on Radio Kashmir or in more modern fusion versions nowadays. Since I started working on this book, I have played and replayed the songs many times. Each and every time, I was mesmerized and shaken to the core by the intensity of the emotions in your voices.

My heartfelt gratitude to all of you for immortalizing Kashmiri language and poetry for our future generations.

I have used poetry and songs (audio/video links) in this book from many sources and would like to acknowledge the poets and singers who directly or indirectly contributed towards making this book possible:

What is New in this Book

1. Previous books (Manzerath, Kasher Khander Beath, Koshur Wanwun and Koshur Wanwun Vol 2) were primarily focused on wedding songs, this book is a repository of all songs, wedding and traditional Kashmiri songs.
2. This book includes over 200+ songs and with help of our vast Kashmiri community. I expect it to grow substantially within the next few years and beyond using online collaboration tools available to all of us.
3. Most of the songs have audio/video links at the end, so you can listen to the song if you are not familiar with the lyrics or the tune. My other goal for including video links from YouTube is to also help our Kashmiri artists. Kashmiri artists who have their registered YouTube channel and have monetized it, will be able to earn some money every time you click on their video link. This is just a small way we can all help our artists get compensated for all the hard work they have put into creating a music album or video.
4. Poet's name has been assigned to the song wherever available. I used available resources to verify the authenticity, however, if you strongly believe someone else to be the true source of the poetry, please share the source and proper credit will be given to the rightful source.
5. Kashmirisongs.com is the official registered domain of this book of Kashmiri songs (Kasher baeth). All contents of this book will point to the web site. Easy to remember and easy to search.

6. There are 3 versions of the book available on the web site. The pdf version, Web version and Google doc version. Table of Content links are active in the web version. Clicking on a link will take you directly to the associated page without having to scroll through all songs in a pdf version. Google doc version has to be used for collaborative submissions or corrections only.

7. Mobile and browser friendly. To help our environment and save trees, I would ask that you not print the book or any pages, if possible. Store the book on your smartphone or desktop. This book is a dynamic repository of songs and since the new songs and updates will be made on a regular basis, it makes better sense to access the most updated songs when you need them.

8. Interactive experience. You will be able to add to this book in the Google doc version. For example, add new songs, suggest corrections, add poet names or add audio links on the live document by using the comment box. Cataloging all Kashmiri songs is a monumental task, and I cannot do it alone. I am hoping by creating this interactive online book resource, we can all collaborate and keep adding more songs and other attributes to this book. This way we can rest assured that our future generations have access to all songs with accurate lyrics and poet names.

9. Searchable. The entire document is now searchable. You can now search using partial search words or portions of a song. (Press Ctrl + F to launch the search box).

10. Lastly, this book is not mine alone; you are all future owners and contributors of content for this book. Please take this ownership seriously for the sake of our future generations and contribute proactively. Our great grandkids need to know that we cared enough to leave this treasure for them to cherish for ages.
